8                   UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
9                   WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON
10                  AT SEATTLE

11                  J.H. and D.H., parents of P.H., a minor,

12                  Plaintiffs,

13                  v.

14                  SEATTLE PUBLIC SCHOOLS,

15                  Defendant.

16                  CASE NO. 2:23-cv-191 MJP

17                  ORDER ON CROSS-MOTIONS
18                  FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

19                  This matter comes before the Court on the Parties' Cross-Motions for Summary 20                  Judgment. (Dkt. Nos. 16, 17.) Having reviewed the opening Briefs (Dkt. Nos. 16, 17), the 21                  Response/Reply Briefs (Dkt. Nos. 18, 19), the Administrative Record (Dkt. Nos. 12, 13), and all 22                  supporting materials, the Court GRANTS Defendant Seattle Public Schools' Motion and 23                  counterclaim and DENIES Plaintiffs' Motion and claim for attorneys' fees.

24                  BACKGROUND

25                  This is an appeal of an administrative law judge's ("ALJ") determination that Defendant 26                  Seattle Public Schools ("the District") denied P.H., Plaintiffs' autistic child with free and 27                  adequate public education.

1 appropriate education (“FAPE”) as required by the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act 2 (“IDEA”) when the District did not place P.H. in his least restrictive environment at the end of 3 the 2021-2022 school year. While Parents seek an award of attorneys’ fees for having prevailed 4 before the ALJ, the District appealed the ALJ’s decision and asks for reversal. (See Compl. (Dkt.
5 No. 1); Answer and Counterclaim (Dkt. No. 8).) To understand the Parties’ arguments and the 6 legal issues, the Court reviews the salient facts from Administrative Record concerning P.H.’s 7 education and the procedural history of this action.

8 A. Factual Background

9 P.H. is a student with Autism Spectrum Disorder who began attending kindergarten in the 10 District in 2017, with special education services provided pursuant to an individualized 11 education plan (“IEP”). (ALJ Findings of Fact (“ALJ”) ¶¶ 1-3 (Administrative Record (“AR”) at 12 2703); AR 2854.) To identify behaviors that interfered with his learning and provide 13 recommendations to reduce or replace them, the IEP team performed functional behavior 14 assessments (“FBAs”) and developed behavior intervention plans (“BIPs”) in April 2018 and 15 March 2019. (AR 2858.) P.H.’s family also worked with private providers to deliver applied 16 behavioral analysis (“ABA”) therapy for P.H., which included a behavioral technician (“BT”) to 17 work with P.H., and accompany P.H. to school to act as one-on-one support during the day. (ALJ 18 ¶ 6 (AR 2704).) This appeared to work well for P.H., and in January 2020, the IEP team 19 determined P.H. no longer needed an FBA or BIP. (ALJ ¶¶ 7-8 (AR 2704-05).) And prior to the 20 closure of in-person school due to the COVID-19 pandemic in March 2020, P.H had been 21 “attend[ing] school regularly and seemed to enjoy it, according to his Parents.” (ALJ ¶ 10 (AR 22 2705).)

23
24

1       The COVID-19 pandemic and remote schooling caused P.H. to regress, and his return to 2 partial in-person instruction in March 2021 was not particularly easy. (See ALJ ¶¶ 17-32, 42.) By 3 March 2021, P.H. attended school in person two-and-a-half hours a day and four days a week, 4 during which P.H. began exhibiting aggressive behavior. (ALJ ¶¶ 42, 45 (AR 2714).) On May 5 17, 2021, Parents requested an FBA to be conducted and a BIP to be developed due to P.H.’s 6 continued aggression. (ALJ ¶ 48 (AR 2715).) But by the end of the school year, no FBA or BIP
7 had been completed. Over the summer break, P.H. attended a “behavior-based summer camp” 8 (referred to as “SCC”) that proved quite successful for P.H. (ALJ ¶¶ 51, 56 (AR 2715-16).) P.H.
9 returned to school on October 4, 2021, after transitioning from his extended participation at SCC.
10 (ALJ ¶ 68; AR 4145, 4156.) And on October 9, 2021, the District presented its proposed FBA
11 and BIP to Parents, who accepted them. (ALJ ¶ 68 (AR 2719).)

12       Upon his return to school for the 2021-2022 school year, P.H.’s behavior became 13 problematic, with frequent occurrences of aggressive behaviors. (AR ¶ 71 (AR 2719).) 14 Beginning in November 2021, P.H. also began complaining about going to school and refusing 15 to get on the bus. (ALJ ¶ 72 (AR 2719).) Several times he refused to get on the bus and his 16 mother ended up driving him to school. (Id.) On November 12, 2021 the IEP team met with 17 Parents and added a one-on-one BT, a bus monitor, and a one-on-one instructional assistant to 18 P.H.’s IEP. (ALJ ¶¶ 73-74 (AR 2720).) The bus monitor was sought due to safety concerns 19 regarding P.H.’s behavior on the bus ride to and from school. (AR 4187.) The bus monitor was 20 not sought in response to school-refusal concerns, of which the District appears to have been 21 unaware at this time. (Id.) But the District was unable to hire anyone for the bus monitor 22 position, so it could not provide that service to P.H. (ALJ ¶ 75 (AR 2721).) Separately, around 23

1 this same time in November 2021, a clinical psychologist working with Parents discussed
 2 residential placement for P.H. and suggested two facilities. (AR 4191.)

3 P.H.’s aggressive behaviors escalated in the Fall and Winter of 2021. At the end of 4 November, P.H.’s outside providers determined they could not serve P.H. safely due to his 5 aggressive behaviors and stopped working with him in early December 2021. (AR 4501; ALJ ¶ 6 79 (AR 2721).) P.H.’s behaviors continued to escalate in December. (ALJ ¶ 80 (AR 2722).) P.H.
 7 masturbated in the classroom on one occasion requiring other students to be cleared of the room, 8 he continued to engage in aggressive assaultive behaviors, and had to be placed in physical holds 9 three times due to aggression. (Id.) P.H. also continued to refuse to go to school periodically in 10 December, but would eventually agree if his mother or one of her friends drove him. (ALJ ¶ 82 11 (AR 2722).) P.H.’s mother informed the District of these occurrences. (Id.) P.H. refused to go to 12 school on January 4, 2022, following winter break, but then attended all other school days in 13 January. (ALJ ¶¶ 83-84 (AR 2722).) The assaultive behavior continued, and District staff 14 members had to place P.H. in physical holds at least three times in January. (ALJ ¶ 84 (AR 15 2722).)

16 The District held an annual IEP meeting with Parents on February 3, 2022. (ALJ ¶ 85 17 (AR 2722).) P.H.’s goals were extensively discussed, as was the revised BIP. (ALJ ¶¶ 85-86 (AR 18 2722-23).) The revised BIP targeted only one behavior—physical escalation—and included two 19 pages of intervention strategies that were almost identical to the October 2021 BIP, despite the 20 increase in physical escalations. (ALJ ¶ 87 (AR 2723).) At this time, Parents were seeking 21 residential placement for P.H., but had not informed the District. (ALJ ¶ 89 (AR 2723).)

22 By March 2022, P.H.’s school-refusal behaviors began to increase. By March 1, 2022, 23 P.H.’s mother emailed the District to inform the District P.H. had become “dangerously 24

1 "aggressive" when Parents attempted to get him on the bus. (ALJ ¶ 91 (AR 2724).) P.H.'s mother
 2 requested an emergency IEP meeting to discuss the issue. (Id.) The District held an IEP meeting
 3 on March 4, 2022, to discuss P.H.'s school-refusal behavior. (ALJ ¶ 92 (AR 2724); AR 4250).)
 4 The IEP developed at the meeting provided for increased BT and Board Certified Behavior 5 Analyst ("BCBA") support during the day and in the mornings at home to support P.H. with 6 school refusal behaviors, as well as direct BCBA services. (ALJ ¶ 94 (AR 2725-26).) The 7 District also offered to try different transportation for P.H., easing back to school using SCC, 8 having a BT from SCC assist at home in the morning before school, and having an ABA agency 9 assist the family. (AR 4250.) The District also recommended starting a new FBA and BIP to 10 address the school-refusal behavior. (Id.) The Parties dispute whether Parents accepted or 11 rejected these offers. But following the meeting, the IEP team moved forward with a BT going to 12 the home in the mornings. (ALJ ¶ 99.)

13 P.H.'s school refusal behavior continued to escalate from March through May, 2022. P.H.
 14 refused to attend school March 10, 11, 14-18, and 21-25, 2022, and he would become physically 15 assaultive if his parents tried to get him out of bed to attend school. (ALJ ¶¶ 102-04 (AR 2727-16 28).) On March 22, 2022, Parents' attorney notified the District of Parents' intent to place P.H. in 17 private residential placement and seek reimbursement from the District if the District did not 18 offer an IEP reasonably calculated to provide P.H. with educational benefit within the next ten 19 days. (ALJ ¶ 105 (AR 2728).) The IEP team met on March 24, 2022, and discussed Parents' 20 request for residential placement. (ALJ ¶ 107 (AR 2728).) The District rejected Parents' request 21 because it believed it could serve P.H through an amended IEP at the District, with provision of 22 additional BT/BCBA support. (Id.) Parents objected to the proposed amended IEP because it did 23 not provide for residential placement. (ALJ ¶ 110 (AR 2729).) But P.H.'s father signed a consent 24

1 form on March 28, 2022 to allow the District to conduct another FBA pursuant to the IEP. (ALJ
 2 ¶ 112 (AR 2730).) On March 29, 2022, Kevin Bascom, a BCBA with Brooks Powers Group, 3 began preparing an FBA to examine P.H.’s school-refusal behaviors. (ALJ ¶ 113 (AR 2730).)
 4 Meanwhile, P.H. refused to attend school for the entire month of April 2022, attended school on 5 May 4-6, 2022, but then refused to attend until May 31, 2022. (ALJ ¶¶ 116, 118 (AR 2731).)

6 On May 13, 2022, the District shared the FBA and BIP with Parents with the intention of 7 targeting both physical aggression and school refusal. (ALJ ¶ 119 (AR 2731); AR 4338-44.) The 8 physical aggression and intervention plan appears to have been carried over from the fall, but the 9 school refusal section lists various intervention strategies to shape re-engagement with P.H. (AR 10 4341-44.) Specifically, Bascom developed interventions to include functional communication, 11 gradual reinforcement of steps towards the desired behavior, which included a “shaping 12 procedure” in which steps towards the goal of school attendance were gradually reenforced.
 13 (ALJ ¶ 121 (AR 2732).) The FBA also proposed reducing demands and providing a choice of 14 activities to P.H. when he did attend school. (Id.) Only small steps were expected at first, and 15 P.H. would receive a predetermined award for completing each step. (Id.) The BIP reflected the 16 FBA’s plan, and was implemented on May 25, 2022. (ALJ ¶ 124 (2732-33).) Parents felt the 17 FBA minimized the scope, longevity, and severity of P.H.’s behaviors. (ALJ ¶ 125 (AR 2733).)
 18 Parents’ clinical psychologist agreed with Parents and felt the strategies set forth in the BIP had 19 already been tried unsuccessfully. (Id.)

20 During the brief time after the BIP was implemented on May 25, 2022 before the end of 21 the school year in mid-June, P.H. had a mixed attendance record. From May 24-27, 2022, P.H.
 22 threw tantrums and escalated behaviors when told he had to get dressed for school, and despite 23 getting dressed and receiving his predetermined award, P.H. still refused to go to school. (AR 24

1 2733 (ALJ ¶¶ 126-28).) From May 31-June 3, P.H. got dressed and attended school without 2 needing any reinforcement—for reasons unknown to Parents. (ALJ ¶ 128 (AR 2733-34).)
 3 Bascom felt this was an indication P.H. could still go to school and that P.H.’s reasons for 4 avoiding school could potentially be overcome. (Id.) P.H. refused to go to school for the 5 remainder of the school year. (ALJ ¶ 129 (AR 2734).)

6 On June 7, 2022, Parents informed the District of their intention to unilaterally place P.H.
 7 at Shrub Oak International School, a private school for individuals with Autism, in New York at 8 the beginning of the summer. (ALJ ¶ 132 (AR 2734).) P.H. began to attend Shrub Oak on July 1, 9 2022, and was reportedly doing well as of September 2022. (ALJ ¶ 141.) Annual tuition at Shrub 10 Oak is $533,695. (AR 3884.)

11 B. Procedural History

12 Parents filed a due process complaint with the Office of Administrative Hearings on 13 April 28, 2022, alleging the District violated the IDEA by failing to provide a variety of 14 accommodations and adequate IEPs. (AR 2699-2702.) Parents also sought approval of and 15 compensation for their unilateral placement of P.H. in a private residential school. (Id.) After 16 holding a nine day hearing in October 2022, the ALJ issued her Findings of Fact, Conclusions of 17 Law, and Order on January 12, 2023. (AR 2697-2782.)

18 The ALJ concluded the District violated the IDEA on four grounds: (1) the District failed 19 to implement P.H.’s January 2020 IEP (AR 2761-62); (2) the BIP in place as of February 2022 20 was inappropriate (AR 2767-68); (3) the 2022 May FBA and BIP were inappropriate (AR 2768-21 69); and (4) the District failed to implement P.H.’s March 2021 IEP (AR 2763-64). The ALJ 22 found the March 2022 IEP was appropriate as to P.H.’s placement when developed, but that the 23

1 FBA and BIP were inappropriate because they did not include recommendations sufficient to 2 deal with P.H.'s behavioral issues and therefore constituted a denial of a FAPE. (AR 2768-72.)

3       The ALJ found the District violated the IDEA by failing to provide FAPE in the least 4 restrictive environment to P.H. prior to his enrollment at Shrub Oak. (ALJ Conclusions of Law 5 ("ALJ Concl.") ¶ 80 (AR 2776).) She concluded that P.H.'s unilateral placement at Shrub Oak 6 was appropriate because it was reasonably calculated at the time of enrollment to meet P.H.'s 7 needs. (ALJ Concl. ¶¶ 81-82 (AR 2776-77).) The ALJ found the equities weighed in the favor of 8 an award of past and future tuition reimbursement, and past and future travel expenses incurred 9 by Parents and P.H. (ALJ Concl. ¶¶ 89-90 & ALJ Order ¶¶ 3-8 (AR 2778-81).)

10       Parents filed this action to obtain attorneys' fees incurred in the administrative 11 proceeding. (See Compl.) Through its counterclaim, the District appeals the ALJ's findings and 12 conclusions on the following issues: (1) whether the FBA dated on or about March 29, 2022 13 inappropriately focused on school refusal, ignored and failed to include input from P.H.'s third-14 party providers, failed to consider or identify elements of residential placement as a necessary 15 component of the BIP, and was untimely; (2) whether the District's proposed IEP and BIP at the 16 time hearing were inappropriate and not reasonably calculated to provide educational because: 17 (a) the April 23, 2022 BIP focused too heavily on school refusal, omitted key insights of third-18 party providers, relied on insufficient data, failed to identify residential placement; and (b) the 19 March 4, 2022 IEP failed to provide the Student with residential placement, which the ALJ
 20 found to be the least restrictive environment necessary for FAPE; (3) whether Parents' requested 21 placement for a private residential school was appropriate; and (4) whether Parents are entitled to 22 any remedies set forth in the IDEA. (See ALJ Summary of Issues at AR 2700-02.)

ANALYSIS

A. Legal Standard

Under the IDEA, the district court is to “receive the records of the administrative proceedings;” “hear additional evidence at the request of a party;” and “grant such relief as the court determines is appropriate” based on a preponderance of the evidence. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(i)(2)(B). The burden of proof is on the party challenging the administrative ruling. Seattle School Dist., No. 1 v. B.S., 82 F.3d 1493, 1498 (9th Cir. 1996). The Court does not perform a de novo review. Ojai Unified Sch. Dist. v. Jackson, 4 F.3d 1467, 1471 (9th Cir. 1993). Rather, the Court gives “due weight . . . to these proceedings” and may not “substitute [its] own notions of sound educational policy for those of the school authorities which [it] review[s].” Bd. of Educ. v. Rowley, 458 U.S. 176, 206 (1982).

“How much deference to give state educational agencies . . . is a matter for the discretion of the courts.” Gregory K. v. Longview Sch. Dist., 811 F.2d 1307, 1311 (9th Cir. 1987) (emphasis in original); see Ojai, 4 F.3d at 1471 (noting that traditional agency deference does not apply). The court must consider the findings carefully and endeavor to respond to the hearing officer’s resolution of each material issue. Capistrano Unified School Dist. v. Wartenberg, 59 F.3d 884, 891 (9th Cir. 1995). The Court is not permitted to simply ignore the administrative findings. Gregory K., 811 F.2d at 1311. But after a careful consideration of the hearing officer’s decision, the court is free to accept or reject the findings in whole or in part. Id.

B. IDEA Standard

The IDEA was created to “ensure that all children with disabilities have available to them a free and appropriate public education [FAPE] that emphasizes special education and related services designed to meet their unique needs and prepare them for further education,

1 employment and independent living.” 20 U.S.C. § 1400(d)(1)(A). A FAPE entails special 2 education and related services be: (1) provided at public expense, under public supervision and 3 direction, and without charge; (2) meeting the standards of the State educational agency; (3) 4 including an appropriate preschool, elementary, or secondary school education; and (4) provided 5 in conformity with an IEP. 20 U.S.C. § 1401(9). To provide a FAPE, a state educational agency 6 must evaluate a student, determine eligibility, conduct and implement an IEP, and determine an 7 appropriate educational placement. J.W. ex rel. J.E.W. v. Fresno Unified Sch. Dist., 626 F. 3d 8 431, 432 (9th Cir. 2010) (citing 20 U.S.C. § 1414).

9 IDEA compliance entails both procedural and substantive components. M.L. v. Fed. Way 10 Sch. Dist., 394 F.3d 634, 644 (9th Cir. 2005) (citing Rowley, 458 U.S. 206–07). And parents 11 may challenge the school district’s procedural and/or substantive compliance with the IDEA. See 12 N.B. v. Hellgate Elementary Sch. Dist., 541 F.3d 1202, 1207 (9th Cir. 2008). The Rowley Court 13 established a two-part test to determine whether a state has provided FAPE. 458 U.S. at 206–07.
 14 “First, has the State complied with the procedures set forth in the Act?” Id. at 206 (footnote 15 omitted). “And second, is the individualized educational program developed through the Act’s 16 procedures reasonably calculated to enable the child to receive educational benefits?” Id. at 206– 17 07 (footnote omitted). “If these requirements are met, the State has complied with the obligations 18 imposed by Congress and the courts can require no more.” Id. at 207. An appropriate public 19 education under the IDEA does not “mean the absolute best or ‘potentially maximizing’ 20 education for the individual child.” Gregory K., 811 F.2d at 1314 (internal citation omitted). A 21 school district must provide “a basic floor of opportunity through a program individually 22 designed to provide educational benefit to the child.” Id. (internal citation and quotation 23 omitted.)

1       Though the ALJ made conclusions about the District's procedural and substantive 2 compliance with the IDEA, the District only appeals the ALJ's conclusions as to substantive 3 compliance. And because the District filed the counterclaim, it bears the burden to demonstrate 4 the ALJ's decision should be reversed. J.W., 626 F.3d at 438.

5 C. The Court's Level of Deference

6       The District argues the ALJ's decision contained numerous errors and lacked 7 impartiality, and therefore the Court should not give deference to her decision. (District Brief at 8 19.) The Court agrees with the District only in part.

9       The Court gives deference to an ALJ's decision "when it evinces his or her careful, 10 impartial consideration of all the evidence and demonstrates his or her sensitivity to the 11 complexity of the issues presented." J.W., 626 F.3d at 440. As the Ninth Circuit has explained, a 12 court "treat[s] a hearing officer's findings as 'thorough and careful' when the officer participates 13 in the questioning of witnesses and writes a decision contain[ing] a complete factual background 14 as well as a discrete analysis supporting the ultimate conclusions." R.B. v. Napa Valley Unified 15 Sch. Dist., 496 F.3d 932, 942-43 (9th Cir. 2007). And "credibility-based findings [of the ALJ] 16 deserve deference unless non-testimonial, extrinsic evidence in the record would justify a 17 contrary conclusion or unless the record read in its entirety would compel a contrary 18 conclusion." Amanda J. ex rel. Annette J. v. Clark Cnty. Sch. Dist., 267 F.3d 877, 889 (9th Cir.
 19 2001).

20       The District argues the ALJ made several factual errors and demonstrated a lack of 21 impartiality by improperly assigning Parents' testimony and the testimony of the Parents' 22 witnesses with more weight than the testimony of the District's witnesses. Given Ninth Circuit 23 case law regarding deference and ALJ's participation in the underlying proceedings, the Court 24

1 affords deference to the ALJ's witness credibility determinations. But the Court agrees with the 2 District that the ALJ made several factual errors. The Court does not afford deference to these 3 erroneous factual findings, as explained in detail below.

4 D. The May 2022 FBA and BIP Were Appropriate

5 The District argues the ALJ erred in concluding the May 2022 FBA and BIP were 6 inappropriate. The Court agrees.

7 To orient this issue, the Court first reviews some basics concerning IEPs, FBAs, and 8 BIPs. An IEP is a written statement, produced annually by a local education agency and designed 9 in conjunction with a disabled child's parents, teachers, and other relevant parties. Ojai, 4 F.3d at 10 1469. The IEP must contain statements of the child's performance, measurable goals, criteria for 11 measuring progress, services, aids, modifications, and supports to be provided, an explanation of 12 the extent a child will not participate with nondisabled children in class or other activities, 13 accommodations necessary to measure achievement and performance, and details regarding the 14 timing, frequency, location, and duration of services and modifications. 20 U.S.C. § 15 1414(d)(1)(A)(i). And as is relevant to this case, FBAs and BIPs are tools used by IEP teams to 16 address behavioral issues that interfere with a student's access to education and may be used and 17 incorporated into a student's IEP. See 20 U.S.C. § 1414(k)(1)(D). The adequacy of an IEP is 18 evaluated in light of information available to the IEP team at the time it was developed; it is not 19 judged exclusively in hindsight. Adams v. State of Oregon, 195 F.3d 1141, 1149 (9th Cir. 1999)
20 ("An IEP is a snapshot, not a retrospective.") (citation omitted). The key is whether the program, 21 at the time it was drafted, was appropriately designed and implemented so as to convey the 22 student a "meaningful benefit." Id.

1       The Court finds the ALJ erred in determining the 2022 FBA and BIP were inappropriate.
2 Applying the “snapshot rule,” the ALJ concluded the FBA and BIP were inappropriate at the 3 time they were developed because the recommendations were insufficient to deal with P.H.’s 4 behaviors and did not identify new interventions. (ALJ ¶ 53 (AR 2769).) The ALJ also 5 concluded the BIP was unlikely to work, describing it as “failing abysmally.” (ALJ ¶ 55 (AR 6 2769).) There are two problems with these conclusions.

7           First, the ALJ erroneously found the District’s expert admitted the BIP was unlikely to be 8 effective. (ALJ ¶ 54 (AR 2769).) The District’s expert provided no such testimony. Instead, the 9 expert opined that the intervention methods met best practices for school refusal, and that 10 although implementation of the BIP was promising, there was insufficient time before the end of 11 the school year to determine whether the interventions would be effective. (AR 1897-98; 1901-12 02.) Indeed, Parents’ expert also noted the BIPs from October 2021 to May 2022 “included 13 strategies and interventions approaches that were well thought out, based on best practices in the 14 field of behavior analysis, and explained in such a way that most paraprofessionals and direct 15 care staff would understand.” (AR 4984.) The ALJ’s erroneous finding regarding this issue 16 undermines her conclusion that the FBA and BIP were inappropriate.

17           Second, the ALJ failed to consider the lack of sufficient time after implementation to 18 determine whether the FBA and BIP were adequate. In support of her finding the BIP was 19 “failing abysmally,” the ALJ incorrectly suggested the BIP had been in place since April and that 20 there was no data collected for April, May, or June. (See ALJ ¶ 54 (AR 2769) (erroneously 21 referring to the BIP to it as the “April 2022” BIP); ALJ ¶ 55 (AR 2769).) The BIP was not 22 implemented until May 25, 2022—sixteen school days before the end of the school year during

1 which P.H. attended school for just four days. (ALJ ¶¶ 124, 128-29.) (AR 2732-34); Parents'
 2 Opp. at 25; District Opening Br. at 39.)

3 The Court finds the ALJ erred in finding the BIP and FBA were inadequate. Given the 4 limited period of time the BIP had been in place, there was inadequate data to confirm whether 5 the FBA and BIP were failing or inadequate. And the fact that P.H. did not attend school each 6 day during this period is not evidence the plans were failing. The ALJ's finding the BIP was 7 "failing abysmally" is unsupported in the record, and the Court rejects the conclusion.

8 Additionally, as both the District and Parents' experts opined, the BIP itself met best practices.
 9 Critically, the goal of the BIP was not for P.H. to attend school on the first day, but to reinforce 10 steps towards school reengagement given that immediate reattendance was too great a goal. (ALJ 11 ¶ 124.) There is evidence in the record that P.H. was making such steps in the limited window 12 during which the BIP was in place. Based on the record before the ALJ, the Court finds that the 13 BIP and FBA were appropriately drafted, as both Parents and District's experts agree, and that 14 there was insufficient time after implementation to determine whether they were adequate or 15 sufficient to provide FAPE. The Court GRANTS the District's appeal as to this issue and 16 REVERSES the ALJ's conclusion.

17 E. May 2022 FBA and BIP Did Not Constitute a Denial of FAPE

18 The Court also finds the ALJ erroneously concluded the May 2022 FBA and BIP 19 constituted a denial of FAPE. (ALJ Concl. ¶ 80 (AR 2776).)

20 To have received a FAPE, the IEP must have "(1) addresse[d] [P.H.'s] unique needs, (2) 21 provide[d] adequate support services so [P.H.] can take advantage of the educational 22 opportunities, and (3) [been] in accord with the individualized education program." Capistrano, 23 59 F.3d at 893 (internal citation omitted). The IDEA only requires an FBA when a child is 24

1 removed from his current placement due to problem behaviors. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(k)(1)(D)(ii).
 2 For other students with disability-related behavioral needs, an IEP need only include (1) 3 “measurable annual goals” developed to “enable the child to be involved in and make progress in 4 the general education curriculum;” and (2) how “progress toward meeting the annual goals . . .
 5 will be measured.” 34 C.F.R. § 300.320(a)(2)(i),(3)(i). The concern is whether the IEP and its 6 underlying behavioral analysis is reasonable, not whether it was ideal. Endrew F. ex rel. Joseph 7 F. v. Douglas Cty. Sch. Dist. RE-1, 580 U.S. 386, 399-400 (2017).

8 The ALJ erred in concluding the May 2022 FBA and BIP denied P.H. FAPE. The Court 9 first notes the ALJ concluded the March 2022 IEP—the last IEP to be developed—was 10 appropriate at the time it was developed. (ALJ ¶ 64 (AR 2772).) This is a critical finding. But the 11 ALJ then concluded the May 2022 FBA and BIP conducted in furtherance of the IEP, were 12 inappropriate and resulted in the denial of a FAPE. (ALJ ¶ 54 (AR 2769).) This conclusion was 13 erroneous, because the ALJ was required to assess the adequacy of the IEP as a whole, not the 14 FBA and BIP, to determine whether the IEP satisfied the provision of FAPE. Rowley, 458 U.S.
 15 at 188-89 (noting that a child receives a FAPE if, along with the other two factors, the program is 16 in accord with the IEP). Moreover, the ALJ wrongly determined that an FBA and/or BIP 17 themselves constituted a denial of FAPE. Inadequate or omitted FBAs and BIPs are generally 18 considered procedural violations of the IDEA only that do not necessarily rise to the level of 19 denial of FAPE. See R.E. v. New York City Dept. of Educ., 694 F.3d 167, 190 (2d Cir. 2012); 20 Only where the FBA and BIP are sufficiently flawed so as to render the IEP inadequate to 21 address the child’s behaviors will they be adequate to support a finding that the district denied 22 FAPE. See id.; Z.B. v. D.C., 888 F.3d 515, 524 (D.C. Cir. 2018). Here, the Court finds 23 inadequate evidence that the FBA or BIP were flawed in such a way as to render the IEP 24

1      inadequate. The ALJ therefore erred in finding the District denied P.H. FAPE based on her 2      unsubstantiated concerns about the FBA and BIP, and where she found the IEP in force to have 3      met the requirements of the IDEA.

4                On this issue the Court GRANTS the District's appeal and REVERSES the ALJ's 5      conclusion.

6      F.      P.H.'s Least Restrictive Environment Did Not Require Private Placement

7                The District argues the ALJ erred in concluding P.H.'s least restrictive environment 8      ("LRE") at the end of the 2022 school year required residential placement. The Court agrees with 9      the District.

10               The IDEA requires, "to the maximum extent appropriate," that a child with disabilities be 11     educated with children who are not disabled, and that special classes or removal of the child 12     occur "only when the nature or severity of the disability of a child is such that education in 13     regular classes with the use of supplementary aids and services cannot be achieved 14     satisfactorily." 20 U.S.C. § 1412(a)(5)(A). This is considered the "least restrictive environment" 15     or LRE. Id. Placement decisions regarding the student are to be made by a group of persons, 16     including the parents and those knowledgeable about the child, the "meaning of the evaluation 17     data," and placement options. 34 C.F.R. § 300.116(a). The placement is to be determined at least 18     annually, based on the child's IEP, and be as close as possible to the child's home. 34 C.F.R. § 19     300.116(b); WAC 392-172A-02060. In some cases, a general education environment may not be 20     an appropriate placement for a child due to the nature or severity of the disability. See 34 C.F.R.
 21     § 300.114(a)(2)(ii). In such a case, the IDEA might require placement of the child in a private 22     school with full funding by the public-school district. Sch. Comm. of Burlington v. Dep't of 23     Educ., 471 U.S. 359, 369 (1985). The Ninth Circuit has adopted a four factor balancing test to 24

1 determine whether a school district complied with the LRE environment. Sacramento City 2 Unified Sch. Dist. v. Rachel H., 14 F.3d 1398, 1404 (9th Cir. 1994). The factors are: “(1) the 3 educational benefits of placement full-time in a regular class; (2) the non-academic benefits of 4 such placement; (3) the effect [the student] had on the teacher and children in the regular class; 5 and (4) the costs of mainstreaming [the student].” Id.

6 The ALJ concluded that although P.H. should not have been placed in a residential 7 facility in late March 2022, by the end of the school year the need for residential placement was 8 “quite clear” given P.H.’s school-refusal behavior and isolation from peers. (ALJ Concl. ¶¶ 63-9 64.) The Court finds several flaws in this conclusion.

10 First, the ALJ undertook no evaluation of the four factors set forth in Rachel H. 14 F.3d 11 at 1404. This alone is a basis for finding reversible error. And the Court’s separate consideration 12 of the four factors shows that they weigh against private placement. The record here shows that 13 there were both academic and non-academic benefits to P.H.’s attendance at his local school.
 14 When P.H. attended school, he made progress on his IEP goals, had two friends in the school and 15 interacted with students in a general education class as well as in his special education class.
 16 These two factors weigh in favor of an in-district placement. Additionally, the cost of keeping 17 P.H. within the district appear minimal compared to the cost of the residential placement at 18 Shrub Oak. This, too, favors his LRE at the District. The only factor that weighs mildly against 19 in-district placement was P.H.’s disruptive behavior in the regular classroom. P.H. did exhibit 20 disruptive behaviors that interrupted the general education class. But the record does not 21 demonstrate that this was a frequent occurrence. And the ALJ herself concluded that up until the 22 end of the 2021-22 school year, the appropriate placement was within the district. The Rachel H.
 23 factors thus disfavor private placement, and support reversal of the ALJ’s conclusion. In 24

1 reaching this conclusion, the Court recognizes that one of the key factors animating the ALJ's 2 decision was P.H.'s refusal to attend school. But the mere fact that P.H. engaged in school-
3 refusal behavior was not a valid reason to avoid an analysis under Rachel H.

4 The Court also finds the ALJ's placed too great a reliance on Seattle Sch. Dist., No. 1 v.
5 B.S., 82 F.3d 1493 (9th Cir. 1996) to support her decision. (See ALJ Concl. ¶ 63.) While there 6 are some parallels between this case and B.S., the record here does not support a finding that 7 P.H.'s school refusal behavior required private placement. In B.S., the student was found to 8 require intensive, round-the-clock care to address behavioral disabilities that prevented her from 9 accessing her education. B.S., 82 F.3d at 1501. The student had also been expelled for six 10 months during which she received no educational support, despite her request for tutoring. Id. at 11 1498. While the facts in B.S. supported the need for a private placement, the facts here do not.
12 P.H.'s school-refusal behavior was substantial, but it did not reach the severity that required 13 round-the-clock care in B.S. Moreover, the District here timely developed a plan to address 14 P.H.'s school refusal behaviors that could have enabled P.H. to access the educational services 15 within the District and Parents did not allow for the plan to be tested and applied before 16 unilaterally placing P.H. at Shrub Oak. And though P.H. refused to attend school for the majority 17 of the four months between March and June 2022, the District was attempting to reengage him 18 and needed time to make that happen. This is far afield of B.S., where the district refused to 19 provide any services after expelling the student. Moreover, some of the delay here in formulating 20 the FBA and BIP for P.H. resulted from the Parents' failure to provide consent to the FBA until 21 the end of March. After the consent was given, Bascom promptly began conducting the FBA in 22 the span of about a month and once the BIP was completed, the District implemented it at the 23 end of May and had less than a month roll it out before the end of school. By the time P.H.
24

1      became more entrenched in school refusal, there was not an adequate period to determine 2      whether the District's intervention strategies would have worked. This differs from B.S., where 3      the district there came up with no timely plan to provide educational services and the district 4      proposed no viable plan to allow for in-district education given the severity of the student's 5      disability. These facts render B.S. distinguishable, and the Court finds the ALJ's reliance on B.S.
 6      inappropriate.

7                The Court here finds the ALJ erred in determining that P.H.'s LRE was at a private 8      placement by the end of the 2022 school year. The record does not support this determination 9      and the ALJ failed to engage in a thorough analysis of the Rachel H. factors, which weigh 10     against private placement. The Court GRANTS the District's appeal on this issue and 11     REVERSES the ALJ's conclusion on this issue.

12     G.     The ALJ Erred in Awarding the Parents' Remedies

13                The Court agrees with the District that the ALJ's erred in awarding Parents 14     reimbursement for P.H.'s private placement and related expenses.

15                Parents who have unilaterally placed their child in a private school are entitled to 16     reimbursement only if a court concludes "(1) that the public placement violated the IDEA, and 17     (2) the private school placement was proper under the IDEA." C.B. ex rel. Baquerizo v. Garden 18     Grove Unified Sch. Dist., 635 F.3d 1155, 1159 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal citation omitted). "If 19     either criteria [sic] is not met, the parent or guardian may not obtain reimbursement." Id.
 20     (internal citation omitted). "If both criteria are satisfied, the district court then must exercise its 21     'broad discretion' and weigh 'equitable considerations' to determine whether, and how much, 22     reimbursement is appropriate." Id. (internal citation omitted).

The Court finds an award of reimbursement improper because the Court concludes that the ALJ erred in finding the unilateral private placement was appropriate. There is inadequate evidence that P.H.'s public placement violated the IDEA. This makes an award of reimbursement inappropriate. Even if the Court found a violation of the IDEA, the Court does not find the equities favor an award of reimbursement for all private-placement related fees. Parents here acted abruptly to unilaterally place P.H. at Shrub Oak without giving the District sufficient time to implement plans to address P.H.'s school refusal. And without any input from the District to consider alternatives, they selected Shrub Oak, which carries with it an annual tuition of $533,695.00. While the Court does not fault Parents for wanting the best for their child, it finds an absence of evidence in the record to support a finding that Shrub Oak represents the proper placement for P.H. and that an award for all tuition and related expenses claims would be appropriate even if there had been a FAPE denial. As such, the Court GRANTS the District's appeal on this issue and REVERSES the ALJ's award of reimbursement.

Additionally, to the extent the ALJ based an award of reimbursement on the denial of FAPE stemming from the FBA and BIP, the Court finds that such an award is improper because the ALJ's findings were erroneous. Given the Court's determination that the FBA and BIP did not result in the denial of FAPE, the Court finds that no award of reimbursement is proper.

CONCLUSION

Having considered the lengthy administrative record and the sprawling arguments of both Parties, the Court finds several errors which require reversal of the ALJ’s decision in favor of the District. First, the ALJ erred in finding a denial of FAPE in 2022. Second, the ALJ erred in concluding that P.H.’s least restrictive environment at the end of the 2021-2022 school year was in a private placement. Third, the ALJ erred in awarding reimbursement to Parents. The Court

1 therefore GRANTS the District's counterclaim and DENIES Plaintiffs' claim for attorneys' fees.

2 The Court directs entry of separate judgment in the District's favor on its counterclaim.

3 The clerk is ordered to provide copies of this order to all counsel.
